son, and in many respects the clean-est, best played contest, that the Mill-ers and Bakers pat on Saturday after-noon at Washington park. It ended in a shut out for the Bakers, the Millers carring home the honors with three runs. But one or two "ifs" would have made it an extra inning con-test.

one hour and 10 minutes for a City league contest is a record. That's what happened Saturday, clean, snappy wall, one hour and 10 minutes for nine innings of it. The only pity was that the crowd was so small, smaller even than the usual Saturday gathering. It was a pitchers' buttle, a fleiders' battle, in fact a battle all around. Both Porter, who fanned four Bakers, and Armstrong, who caused three Millers to cut three knicks in the atmosphere, pitched bully ball.

There wasn't a single batter who touched second, to stay there, until the fourth inning, so close was the rivalry of the pitchers, and so clean was the fleiding, in and out. Then in the sixth it happened, but only by had plays and bad luck. Thompson, on first, dropped a perfect throw and the runner was safe. Hill was hit by the pitcher, making two on bases.

Then Barker hit to right fleid, a beauty and good for a double, serving to bring in the two runners. Then Barker, who is something of a speed fiend on the base lines, stole third, and on an error by catcher Doering, who made a bad peg to third, he actually stole home, making the trio of tallies and winning the game. In the fifth there had been a clever triple play by the Millers which is worthy of some mention. It was kiefer to H. Grady is Klefer to Tasset.

Sheltous Beat Millers.

By the run of baseball luck, and excellent playing by almost every man on the lineup, the Sheltons in the second game of Sunday's double header defeated the Millers. Since the winners stand at the hottom notch of the City league standings and the Millers are close rivals for first position, the victory for the former all Mexican team as a surprise.

Both nines played ball for seven innings, ball every minute. Mesa and Cargo held the two teams rankess until the eighth haning when Doering was hugging third. Gaffield leaned on one to the center suburb, and landed at first, while Doering ambled over the platter. Caffield was caught off of second for the third out. Scores:

Strikes and Balls

By T. Turner-

PREPARATORY to the anticipated revival of the old Cactus league o of the southwest to be played this year 0 at El Paso, both the 22d infantry and ander. night to play Tuesday in Silver City. wednesday at Fort Bayard and Thursday at Hurley. It is expected that the closest game will be played at the latter town, which has a great team, and the soldiers' best efforts will be saved for that contest. The Millers left Sunday night for a week's visit, and six games, at Marfa and Alpine. They will play first at Alpine on Thursday. The Army team will visit Marfa and Alpine next week.

And Kemp has a red shirt, all same Erlekson. But Kemp got one that wasn't fast color and you should have seen his uniform!

Speaking of Erickson, that lanky fielder, it is really almost true that he either gets three bases on a hit or makes three strikes. Strange cuss!

You can never tell anything about nationality or occupation any more in the City league muddle. A soldier, Warnock, playing for the Bakera Mesa, a Mexican, has been drafted from the Sheltons by the dough pounders, and there are a flock of Americans working on the Sheltons' lineup.

They ought can that prolonged fun-go batting in the lapses between the double headers. It is sometimes tire-some enough to see two poor games without any of that town lot stuff.

Umpire Lortz came in for his share of the fans' howling in Sunday's game. Loriz may say, "they all look good when they're far away."

"Oh, please let me throw the game away."

No, please please let me throw the game away."

E. Mesa, who was catcher for the Sheltons, has been signed by the Bakers and is playing in left field. The clever Mexican catcher is fast proving himself a worthy all around ball player and his work Saturday was great when he made two or three good

The Bakers Saturday removed Sauer from right field at an early stage of the game and put in Cunningham.

Saturday's game between the Miliers and the Bakers was not only the best ball of the season. It was a game free from wrangling, and this pace should be kept up and perhaps the timid fans will return to the grandstand.

"Gen." Culpepper scored Saturday's game and did it with his customary culat—French for class. They wanted him to mark them up on the big board too, but the "general" mutineed

ACCORDING TO WHICH BAR?

Little Stories About Baseball By. W. A. Phelon to have lade as he was to the race rapscallions, who intentionally strove to jar his dignity.

During the last few years of Hank O Day's reign as umpire, however, he began to inflict his penalties, or extend his pardons, after a curious fash. Ion. Ever and anon, some howing dervish would tramp all over Henry's feelings with wild and bristling language—and Hank wouldn't even frown upon him. Just let him bellow and get by. Then some less vecally gifted athlete would sall into Henry with much milder speech—and get the can instanter. The players began to wonder and to marvel. At first, they thought Hank was playing favorlies, but this idea vanished when he failed to chase out a couple of ancient enemies, and put the kibosh on some youngsters who had been brought up in the same part of Chichgo. Then they thought Henry's mind must run in alternate chancels of goodness and ferocity, but this theory was abandoned as untenable in view of the equitable justice that was known to be a fundamental part of the O'Day character. It remained for the Cincinnati club—the same club that Henry was to lead in after days—to decipher the mystery and solve the problem.

Tom Downey, usually the quietest one found a great umpire for many and many a year, one of the sternest and most dignified of arbiters, and later an able manager.

You couldn't hand Henry any joits and get away with them. Not if the court knew itself, and it usually did. A fresh crack at Hank O'Day usually meant the rausmitten sign and instant basishment, and any time Hank didn't fire the sinner it was a cinch that the wise old owl knew that this particular offender was trying to get put out intentionally. Many a player tries to get ejected without giving serious offensee — a broiling hot day, or a feeling of general lassitude being responsible—and Henry was as wise to those lads as he was to the rude rapscallions who intentionally strove to jar his dignity.

During the last few years of Hank

Richard Hoblitzell walked to the plate, and anchored himself on the plate, and anchored himself on the left side of the platter. "One strike!" boomed O'Day. Hoblitzell stared at him with a seering smile. "Gwan!" cried Hoblitzell. "That was a rotten ball to call a strike!" "Get outa the game!" whooped Mr. O'Day "Go on now—get a move on you—get outa this, and get outa the field!" And Hoblitzell, astonished beyond all measure, went meekly from the battle. But over on the bench a mighty yell went up—the Reds had solved the mystery!
